Leopold and Loeb to Plead Insanity

PARENTS MAKE PUBLIC PLEDGE

Will Not Attempt to Defeat Justice, Declare

TO ASK FAIR PLAY

Statement Construed to Appear Prejudice

By United Press

CHICAGO, June 7.—Both state and defense in the trial of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of 14-year-old Robert Franks, today were digging trenches from which they are to stage the greatest legal battle in Chicago's criminal history.

While State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe and his battery of aids were flinging two "airtight" canisters against the two young intellects—one a charge of murder, the other of kidnapping for ransom—parents of the two boys made a strong bid for public sympathy.

State to Demand Death

"Should Leopold and Loeb be acquitted of the murder charge, or even be found insane, the state will immediately demand a new trial on the kidnapping indictment, it was said at Crowe's office. Both charges carry death penalties.

A brief statement, the first official word from the defense, was made public last night by the fathers of the two boys.

The fathers, Nathan Leopold, Sr., president of Morris Lysper Box company, and Albert H. Loeb, millionaire vice president of Sears Roebuck & Company, pledged themselves to make no attempt to "defeat justice."

Statement by Parents

The statement was issued, it was believed, as a defense against public opinion in Chicago which has been bitter against the two defendants.

It was "just for the fun of it," said Leopold, Sr., "and I am sure, murdered young Franks."

CRESSY TO TELL OF CONVENTION

Will Cressy's of to the republican convention.

He'll "cover" it for The Port Arthur News before it starts—that's so to get all the preliminaries in—until, it adjourns.

"Odd guy, Cressy, to cover a convention," you will say.

You said it, in deed.

Odd isn't the word. He's a screamer. Doesn't know a thing about politics.

But funny—oh! But funny—oh!

Will Cressy, however, you know Cressy already—the quaintest comedian on the vaudeville stage, one of the most laughable writers of today.

CONGRESS WILL ADJOURN TODAY

Members to Scatter To Conventions

EXTRA SESSION TALKED

Scandal Probe, Opposition To Coolidge Highlights

By United Press

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Congress adjourns tonight for the summer.

The session, the first of the 68th congress, which began amid stormy scenes and raged through six months, is going out in the midst of a 7 p. m. Members will scatter to the conventions and then to their states to prepare for the campaign.

Extra Session Possible

There is some talk of an extra session in September but the outcome will await developments of the campaign. The regular meeting is scheduled for December 1.

The things for which this session will be remembered above all others is its scandal investigations, its dogged opposition to the president and the rise to power of the progressives.

The session opened last December, a new congress elected in 1923 with democrats and republicans and practically evenly divided so that the progressive group held the balance of power.

For days they blocked organization of both houses, refusing to permit the republicans to elect the speaker in the house until they had obtained a liberalization of the rules. In the senate they won their fight to keep Senator Cummins, of Iowa, author of the Eel-Cummins railroad bill, from the chairmanship of the senate committee, electing Senator Smith, South Carolina, a democrat, to the post.

Oil Probe Sensation

Not until their wishes in this respect prevailed did they permit business to get under way.

The "Teapot Dome" investigation rapidly developed into a major scandal early in the session and was quickly followed by the authorization of other probes into suspected official corruption. The investigation of former Attorney General Daugherty's conduct of the department of justice, of alleged land frauds in Texas and the internal revenue bureau of president Coolidge.

P. O. SALARY BILL VETOED

Coolidge Disapproves Increase to Clerks

By United Press

WASHINGTON, June 7.—President Coolidge today vetoed the postal salary increase bill.

Tax bills which have increased salaries of 100,000 postal employees an average of $200 each, involving an expenditure of about $60,000,000.

Attached to the measure as a "rider" was the cable corrupt practices bill, which would have provided a complete system of regulation of campaign expenditures. This also was killed by the veto. Mr. Coolidge will send a message to congress later today explaining his action.

There were doubters and scoffers in the days of the Master. These probably stood in the crowds and saw death cast out and withered limbs revived and yet would not believe. When Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness there were those who with little faith they would not turn their heads and gaze on the symbol and be cured from a plague which was killing them," the healer said.

Denies Scoldish Motive

The speaker presented in answer to charges by skeptics that he was probably a fair preying on a gullible public, that monetary gain was not his object.

"I am simply an humble minister of God, trying in the most sincere manner I know to serve Him and follow His footsteps. I am seeking no earthly reward aside from a satisfaction of knowing within my own soul I am doing my duty as I see it pointed out to me," the minister said.

The long line of sufferers willing to have the healer and his disciples may for their ailments was undiminished last night. It has been noted to persons have been brought to the healer on stretchers or in wheel chairs. No blind persons, as far as can be learned, have come to seek sight restoration. People, the majority of them women, with chronic ailments, rheumatism and heart trouble, the most prevalent form, to the healer's altar each night at 7 o'clock.

Key's Mother Claims Cure

The outstanding case of a man who was that of a life-long epileptic, his mother said last night, was cured by the healer's power.

He prayed for my boy and pronounced him cured. This morning I took my son back to the physician. He said the growth had developed and dismissed the case," the mother said.

"Monday it was feared my boy would have to submit to a 'confession' have the growth taken out," she said. "Thursday morning I brought him to Brother Sullivan. He prayed for my boy and pronounced him cured. This morning I took my son back to the physician. He said the growth had developed and dismissed the case," the mother said.

Robbed Bank "Just for Fun"

Norma Anderson, 17, robbed a bank at Farmington, Ill., of $1140, while holding her 2-year-old baby in her arms. Then she forced a taxi driver, at the point of a gun, to drive her to a friend's home in a nearby town. Her officers arrested her and recovered the money. In the county jail at Lewisville, Ill., she says she "did it for fun." Police are seeking two men believed to be involved.

Faith followed by actual works of healing is the procedure which Rev. J. C. Sinclair, claiming to be inspired with divine power to strike down disease, told his audience last night at the Assembly of God church, Thirteenth and Vicksburg, was sufficient credentials that he was not an impostor.

"There were doubters and scoffers in the days of the Master. These probably stood in the crowds and saw death cast out and withered limbs revived and yet would not believe. When Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness there were those who with little faith they would not turn their heads and gaze on the symbol and be cured from a plague which was killing them," the healer said.

Body of Fifth Of Drowning Victims Discovered at Dawn

Dead Youth Is Found in Shallow Water, 200 Yards From Place Where Other Victims Lay Along Shore

Cast ashore sometime during the night by the tide that swept him to his death, the body of Teddy Carlson, Jr., fifth and last victim of the swimming party Thursday night, was found at dawn today.

Searchers located the body on the sands at McFadden's beach about 200 yards below the place where the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Randall Bonnette, 648 1-2 Sixth street; Miss Adele Montagne, 612 Eighth street; and Homer Souther 217 Seventh street, were washed ashore early Friday.

Disappears Last Hope

As though loath to part with the body of the man recognized as the best swimmer with the ill-fated party of Port Arthurians, the gulf clung to young Carlson for two nights and a day. Recalling that Carlson was one of the best swimmers in this section, friends said today it seemed that the gulf, as though not satisfied with claiming his life, tried to add the triumph of possession to its grim victory.

In boats patrolling the stretches of surf off McFadden's beach, walking along the sands and through shallow water, friends and relatives maintained a search for the body all day Friday. As the first streaks of dawn broke over the dark rolling surf today, the searchers went out again, and in the dim light a band of men walking the beach found the body of Carlson lying in shallow water. An ambulance from the Grammar establishment brought the body to Port Arthur to be prepared for burial.

No Funeral Arrangements

Funeral arrangements for the five victims of the gulf were still in complete today. The body of Miss Montagne was removed from the Grammar establishment to the family home, 612 Eighth street, Friday night. Friends were making funeral arrangements for Souther, and it is likely that his body will be shipped out tonight or early Sunday for his home in Scott, Louisiana.

W. Wable, of Trenton, New Jersey, father of Mrs. Randall Bonnette, is en route to Port Arthur in response to messages telling of the death of his daughter and her husband. Wable wired her mother, Mrs. Bonnette, Monday afternoon and until he gets here, no funeral arrangements will be made for Mr. or Mrs. Bonnette.

Carlson 1918 High Graduate

At a late hour today arrangements were being made for Carlson, but had not been completed. He was the son of Captain T. Carlson, of 1735 Eighth street, member of the Sabine Pilots association.

Carlson was graduated from the Port Arthur High school, in the class of 1918, and had lived in Port Arthur all his life. Surviving besides the father are two sisters, Miss Mamie Carlson, Mrs. Edith Dement, and a brother, Frank, all of Houston.

LA FOLLETTE AS FACTOR FEARED

By United Press

CLEVELAND, June 7.—Administration leaders here are taking very careful note of the danger to President Coolidge's success at the polls involved in the independent candidacy of Senator La Follette.

FEATURE FOR 'MODEL HOME'

Every Care and Consideration To Be Taken

Features of the Model Home sponsored by The News to be built on a select lot in Dryden place that are being given particular study at the present time are the plumbing and flooring.

These important details are being worked out in strict conformity to the architectural plans. To give the maximum plumbing fixture at each of the many places in the Model Home calling for same is the idea of those in charge.

There will be no faulty plumbing in the Model Home and everything will be installed with the idea that thousands of people will view the home when it is finished and only that part of the plumbing material in which a just price is taken will be seen. The bathroom fixtures will probably be the place where the plumbing part of the Model Home will be seen at its advantage. Everything from the tiled floor to the ceiling and walls of the bathroom will be considered in a perfect scheme conforming to plumbing plans being worked out with as much plain and detail as was taken in the drawing of plans for the entire structure.

The matter of selecting proper flooring for each of the rooms is also being carefully gone over at this time. Mrs. M. L. Gill who is in charge of the building program for the Model Home has been going over with floor experts many floor plans. Various grades and colors of flooring are being considered. Each room is being taken as a separate unit and given close attention. Variety to suit the outstanding requirements of each room is being considered.

"The Model Home will be something Port Arthur will take great pride in, we firmly believe. We are planning on the basis that nothing is too good for a home which served the Model Home," Mrs. Gill said.

PARENTS MAKE

A criminal belief that the boys would escape death sentence because of the millions spent in their defense has added to the sentiment against Leopold and Loeb.

The father's joint statement, given out at the office of their attorney, denied that huge sums would be spent for the defense, "either for legal or medical talent." It gave a clear indication that the defense would be built around a plea that their sons were insane.

Not to Spend Millions

The statement follows:

"In view of the many statements that large sums of money will be used in the defense of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb, the families of the accused boys desire to say that they have lived in Chicago for more than fifty years and the public can judge whether they have conducted themselves in their relations with this community in such a way as to earn a standing as truthful decent, law abiding citizens, conscious of their duties and responsibilities to the community in which they live.

"They have not the slightest inclination or intention to use their means to stage an unwholesome legal battle with an elaborate array of counsel and an army of high priced attorneys in an attempt to defeat justice. Only such defense as that to which every human being is entitled will be provided for their sons.

Nominal Fees

"Assuming that the facts in this case are substantially as published, then the only proceeding they favor is simple, solemn investigation under the law touching the mental responsibility of their accused sons.

"Other emphatically state that no counsel for the accused boys will be retained, other than the lawyers now representing them with the possible, but not probable, retention of one additional lawyer. There will be no large sums of money spent either for legal or medical talent.

"The fees to be paid the medical experts will be only such fees as are ordinary and usual for similar testimony.

"The lawyers representing the accused boys have agreed that the amount of their fees shall be determined by a committee composed of the officers of the Chicago Bar Association.

No Attempt to Defeat Justice

"If the accused boys are found by the jury to be not mentally responsible, their families, in accordance with their conscientious duty to the community, assure that the public must be fully protected from any further menace by these boys.

"In no event will the families of the accused boys use money in any attempt to defeat justice.

(Signed)

neganda for the 'Bak peace prize and the Mellon plan of Russian-American relations and a host of minor problems—all got under way and poured out session.

In this turbulent legislative scene the wishes of the president received little attention.

Exactly six months ago today, President Coolidge outlined his legislative desires in his first message to congress. Now with the end only a matter of hours, congress has repudiated his suggestion on nearly every important law made and ignored many of his recommendations.

Here's what congress did this session as compared with the expressed desires of Mr. Coolidge: (His first message recommendations are given in quotation marks):

TAXATION: "A proposed plan has been presented by the Secretary of Treasury Mellon (which has my unqualified approval)."

Congress enacted a tax reduction law with the democratic business rates and repudiated Mellon's suggestions on every important provision.

BONUS: "I do not favor the granting of a soldier bonus."

Congress adopted an insurance bonus plan and then made it a law over veto of the president.

IMMIGRATION: "It is necessary to continue a policy of restricted immigration."

Miscellaneous Squabble

A law with stringent restrictions limiting quotas on two per cent of the 1920 census was adopted but a provision was included excluding Japanese, strongly objected to by the president just before it was passed.

MISCELLANEOUS: "I recommend this property be sold."

The house adopted the Ford offer permitting lease of the project but the senate got in such a serious squabble that final action was put over until December.

FARM RELIEF: "Every sound remedy that be devised should be applied."

The Norris-Burns farm diversification bill favored by Mr. Coolidge was killed by the senate. The McNary-Harvey price stabilization bill was killed by the house. The Norris-Sinclair bill was not even considered. No important farm relief was enacted.

WORLD COURT: "I commend it (the Harding proposal) to the favorable consideration of the senate."

Republicans agreed on the Pepper substitute which was later repudiated by Mr. Coolidge and nothing was done.

RAILROADS: "Competent authority should have an entire reorganization of the rate structure for freight is necessary."

No important or revisionary rail legislation was even seriously attempted in either house and many of the bills are not yet out of committee.

BRAZIL TO BAR JAPS, BELIEF

May Follow Action of U. S. In Exclusion

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 7.—Japanese may also be excluded from Brazil if plans reported from Tokyo for emigration of large numbers of Japanese to this country are put into effect.

Brazil so far has not given Japanese immigration any great degree of consideration and no restrictions whatever are placed on immigration from the Oriental empire, but with the United States excluding the Japanese, it is felt that there may be too great a rush of Japanese for Brazil.

The 1920 census revealed that there were 40,000 Japanese living in this country, largely farm laborers working on the large coffee plantations and in the rice fields of the state of Sao Paulo. During the three years since 1920 between 1,200 and 2,000 Japanese immigrants have been received at Brazilian ports, but discontented Japanese immigrants have departed from this country at an average of 60 per cent during the past ten years.

The discontent among these immigrants has been accredited to living conditions on Brazilian farms and devaluation of Brazilian money. The Japanese farmer is better paid for his labor in his native country than in Brazil, and he also finds fault with accommodations on Brazilian farms.

However, should Japanese start migrating to Brazil in such large numbers as it would appear by Tokyo reports they plan to do, it is believed certain restrictive measures would be adopted by Brazil.

U. S. LAWYERS EUROPE BOUND

Bar to Hold Annual Sessions in London

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—The annual meeting of the American Bar Association, to be held here July 8-10 with a special session to follow immediately, at London, England, promises to be one of the most important in the history of the organization. It is expected that following the Philadelphia session, several thousand members, wives and children will sail for London on the Berengaria, Laconia and Aquitania to accept the invitation of the bar of England for a joint meeting.

Invitations have also been tendered by the bar of France and the lawyers of Ireland for the Americans to visit France and Dublin.

The London committee, which has complete charge of arrangements on the other side, has settled upon two functions, one a reception and banquet to be tendered by the Lord Mayor of London in the Guild Hall on July 22, and the other a meeting and dinner in Westminster Hall on July 23.

The Hotel Cecil, Strand, will be the headquarters of the association, where members may register for the meeting and the functions incident thereto.

Many of the members of the American Bar Association will visit Ireland to study the work of the International Court at The Hague. Deft is but eight miles from The Hague and occasion may be taken to go there to visit the tomb of Hugo Grotius, the father of international law. It is expected that courtesies will be extended by the Dutch Bar.

Nineteen twenty-five is the 500th anniversary of the publication of Grotius' great work "De Jure Belli Ac Pacis." A fund of $10,000 is being raised to be used as a gift from the American bench and as a memorial to Grotius, the ancient church at Deft where Grotius lies.

Americans Drink Much Champagne in Paris

PARIS, June 7.—The world is now drinking as much French champagne as in pre-war days, but France is drinking the greater portion of it. Russia, Germany, Scandinavia and the United States take below, but Americans are still strong allies of France in this regard when they arrive here.

Figures produced by the French Wine Producers' association covering the last six months indicate that the consumption of champagne has equaled that of the corresponding period of 1913. Before the war, however, the French only consumed 25 per cent of the output, and the remainder was exported. Today the consumption in France has reached 65 per cent of the output, and the remainder, only 35 per cent, is exported.

There are two explanations of this. French people, fearing the increased high cost of living and the depreciation of the franc, have put their money into large stocks for future consumption or sale. Also there is an increasing number of American visitors who, dry at home, drink more than they used to when they arrive here. Restaurant keepers regard the American as the best champagne customer.

Trotter Starts An Inter-City Service

When 6 o'clock came today, the first Cadillac touring car moved off from the Yellow Cab Service Station here, inaugurating the Yellow Stage Line operating from Port Arthur to Beaumont under the supervision of C. E. Trotter.

The stage line will be run on the hour from 6 to 8 a. m., every two hours from 8 o'clock in the morning until 4 p. m., and back on the hour from 4 until 7 o'clock.

The terminus in Beaumont will be the Yellow Cab sub-station adjoining the Hotel Beaumont.

The company is carrying a $25,000 public liability insurance policy in compliance with state laws, Trotter said this morning.

It Costs Something To Meet the King

LONDON, June 7.—The cost of a being presented at court has soared this season to stiffer prices than were ever known before.

The proud papa of a society but who is scheduled to blossom at a court ball can count himself lucky if he has off for as little as $500.

It's a cinch the bills will not be under that, and they may be anywhere above it, clear on to the bright blue sky as a limit.

The biggest part of the bill, of course, is the court dress. The white-plume fan, the feathers, the train, the veil, the gloves, the flowers, everything must accord with the rigid specifications provided by the Lord Chamberlain.

Before the court season commences the British, American and other debutantes will be the beginning again of such services as the morning of Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock hour, the children's day program will be given. The title of the Children's Day service is, "The Church and the Children."

PROPOSES NEW ROUTE FOR WESTERN FLYERS

ARCADIA, Calif., June 7.—An air route between Ross Field here and Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., just 20 miles from St. Louis, with regularly timed trips would be a feasible project, according to Dr. Ford Ashman Carpenter, head of the meteorological and aeronautic department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, who recently returned from a trip to the east under orders of the war department.

Dr. Carpenter says he believes it would be feasible to fly from here to Scott Field, Ill., to avoid the long one stop in Oklahoma for refueling in the air, and at Port Worth, Texas, to recondition the helium in the lighter-than-air ships that would be used on the route.

Port Worth is headquarters for the production of helium, the non-inflammable gas which would mean a big saving in the transportation of the gas to home ports of the ships.

Further steps in the establishment of such a route as proposed by Dr. Carpenter are forthcoming, he believes.

U. S. DESTROYER ORDERED TO ALBANIA

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The destroyer Tex Bulwer has been ordered to Delphi, Albania, to assist American Minister Smith to maintain radio communication and to report on the revolution situation, the navy department was advised today by Vice Admiral Andrews, commander of the American fleet in European waters.

Practical Nurse Tells

Mrs. N. E. Snow, of Route 1, near Paris, Tenn., tells the story of her experience as follows:

"I am 62 years old and I have been a practical nurse for more than 20 years, taking mostly maternity cases. One of my daughters suffered from cramping and I would just bend double and have to go to bed."

CARDUI

was recommended to her and she only had to take about two bottles, when she hardly knew that it was she who suffered so little pain.

"My youngest daughter was run-down, weak and nervous... no appetite and tired all the time. I gave her two bottles of Cardui. It built her up and she began eating and soon gained in weight and has been so well since."

Try Cardui. At all druggists.

Open Tomorrow Grandview Number 2

The Pride of Port Neches and Nederland

Tomorrow is red letter day for those interested in ideal home sites or profitable investments. Grandview Number 2 will be thrown on the market tomorrow. Grandview Number 2 represents one of the greatest values in real estate ever offered in this part of the country. Make it a point to visit Grandview Number 2 tomorrow. Come out and look it over. One look means a lot and you will never regret your visit.

Here's What Grandview No. 2 Offers

For the Home Owner

No home site ever offered more inducements than Grandview Number 2. The streets are extra wide, the lots are full size and the alleys are very large. Plenty of room for garden or chicken raising. The high elevation—as high as 19 feet—gives you the country air with city conveniences.

In the Way of Investment

From a purely investment standpoint consider these features: Grandview Number 2 being a residential section makes the lots more valuable. Each home built adds to the value of each lot. Two refineries are in operation and another under construction. Streets not shelled will be shelled soon. No taxes until 1928. No interest until 1928. The titles are perfect—an abstract free with each purchase without further cost when the lot is paid for.

Located on new shell road 1-2 way between Nederland and Port Neches.

Follow the signs.

Free autos meet all interurbans at Nederland Sunday.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

LET US THEREFORE FOLLOW AFTER THE THINGS WHICH MAKE FOR PEACE, AND THINGS WHEREWITH ONE MAY EDIFY ANOTHER.—ROM. 14:19.

The Editorial Mind

However, comma—
Odds and Ends and Comments on Our Morning Mail

Back in 1940 a book called "The Cabinet of Curiosities" was published in New York. It had a big sale for those times, because the author realized that every generation thinks it is living in the greatest period of history.

Let us consider one of the marvels of 1940 and compare it with the marvels of 1924. We quote from the old book:

"The world no longer resembles the world of Columbus. On those unknown seas—above which was unknown to rise a black band, the hand of Spain, which the most magnificent night and dragged them to the bottom of the abyss—packets perform regular voyages for the conveyance of letters and passengers."

Instead of those rude, filthy, infectious, damp ships in which you live upon, and were devoured by scurvy, elegant vessels offer to passengers cabins wainscotted with mahogany, provided with carpets, adorned with mirrors, flowers, libraries, musical instruments and all the delicacies of good cheer.

As for passengers, we laugh at them! Distances have disappeared! Steamboats no longer care for contrary winds on the ocean, or for opposing currents in rivers; they are floating palaces of two or even three stories, from whose galleries the traveler admires the most magnificent scenery. The genius of man is truly great for his petty habitation."

The travelers of 1940 thought they experienced the final word in luxury and progress when they made safe flights with motors on the walls, showers aboard, and genuine carpets on the floor.

We wonder what those same travelers would say if they could come back to life and journey on a modern ocean liner with its electric lights, indoor swimming pool and radio music from afar.

But if they then traveled in one of those airplanes that are making the round-the-world flight.

You can be a millionaire for a day. In the most exclusive district of Boston, a millionaire's home has been purchased by Alexander Banawart, who has an entirely new scheme for making money.

The mansion—including all its lavishly furnished, bedrooms, baths and others servants—is for rent by the day or even by the hour. The rental for an afternoon of bridge is $50.

This fellow Banawart is evidently a shrewd psychologist. Human nature is on his side. He is in a field that will be widely developed. How easy it is to make money—if you have a new idea.

The lure of Broadway is interfering with the fact that the outskirts of New York City workers want jobs near the Gay White Way. Some are reported to have quit the factories because they got bored during lunch hour. A different sort of job near Broadway may pay less, but it's closer to excitement and gaiety.

This is human nature, and it is the thing that is preventing a general exodus of factories and mills from large cities to small towns. What percentage of the population—employers as well as employees—is more intent on a good time than old-fashioned work?

The Germans are getting ready for something. Just what, isn't clear. But the government centered in Berlin is spending less than it's collecting in taxes and so on—saving as much as five million dollars a week. This results from the 30 per cent increase in taxes.

The European situation begins to look more promising, with money piling up in Germany for reparations. Or will it be used for that?

German farmers are less interested in reparations and finance than in the potato bug which is marching from France to invade their fields. Quarantine is being established along the border. It's charged that the A. E. F. brought the potato bug into France. That is not improbable. It might have been by way of revenge for French crops.

The potato crop is the mainstay of German agriculture. Quite naturally, Heinle is more worried about the potato bug than our south about the boll weevil.

England is working more, under the labor government. She has a million unemployed. But this is a quarter million fewer than at the beginning of the year.

What's equally important to the English dinner-pail carrier is that the cost of living over there is only 70 per cent higher than before the war. In our country, living costs are more than twice as high as in 1914, despite lower estimates by corporation statisticians and others.

Wars, by the way, in the basic English industries rise or fall as the living goes up and down. Organized labor takes care of that, has it written into its agreements with employers.

Said Columbus, of the natives of the islands of the West Indies: when cotton grew and where it was wanted. They also traded cotton and gold for pieces of bows, bottles, jugs, and jars, like persons without reason, which I forbade because it was very wrong."

Columbus explained: "But" axes go naked except some of the women who use a covering of a leaf, or some foliage, or a cotton cloth which they make themselves for that purpose."

While the United States is today the big home of cotton, its original home is unknown. Cotton was known in India 500 years B. C. Cotton cloth was a luxury among the Romans. linen was their staple article for cloth.

NORRIS' ATTACK ON COOLIDGE AND FORD EXAMPLE OF RIMFIRE POLITICS

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska is a statesman with a nasty tongue. He turned his guns on Calvin Coolidge and Henry Ford the other day and what he said must have tickled the wild radicals of American politics. According to the man with the nasty tongue, President Coolidge and Henry Ford made a trade. Ford was to be given Muscle Shoals and in return for this he was to give all his influence to President Coolidge on November election day.

There isn't a sane man in America who is fair minded as well as sane, who would believe such rot. Henry Ford is an honest man. He is one of the two American billionaires. He doesn't need money nor does he need Muscle Shoals. If he had been given Muscle Shoals he would have done something magnificent for the south and the farmers of America who buy fertilizers. Now Muscle Shoals will go to a great power trust controlled by British capital.

President Coolidge is an honest man. He has been in public life many years. He has filled public office for many years. No taint of dishonor or dishonesty has ever attached itself to his name. His policies may be unpopular with many; his republicanism may be distasteful to many but he is a man of honor as well as a man of action.

In the long ago when the Nazarene was on earth, the Scribes and Pharisees were in evidence. Scribes and Pharisees are in evidence today. Henry Ford could have been elected President of the United States. He cast aside the crown. Now why should a senatorial trantula from Nebraska or any other state attempt to throw vitrol in the eyes of a man who is a great humanitarian as well as one of the world's foremost builders?

PLIGHT OF COTTON INDUSTRY

According to a bulletin issued by a big eastern trust company, the condition of the cotton textile industry of the United States is both difficult and discouraging. Few if any of the New England cotton mills are operating at normal capacity and many mills are closing down temporarily. Keen competition prevails among the various New England mills for the business now being offered and it is said their output is often offered at prices below the cost of production.

Raw cotton is selling around thirty cents a pound. It sold in pre-war days at fifteen cents. Now the claim is made it is impossible for cotton manufacturers to produce goods for sale at prices approaching the pre-war level when they must pay thirty cents per pound for cotton. Again the position of the cotton crop also has a depressing effect on American manufacturing.

American manufacturers contend that foreign competition is largely responsible for the depression existing in the American cotton industry. Even should this year's cotton crop exceed the yield of the last years, they say there is no possibility of raw cotton declining to its pre-war price level.

Should another famine crop come this year, what are the manufacturers going to do about it? On August 1 there will be a carry over of less than 1,600,000 bales, the smallest since 1890 and the shelves of the world are bare, the warehouses are empty.

DEGENERATES AND THEIR CRIMES

Two youthful scions of wealthy families in the City of Chicago are on their way to the gallows or the electric chair. They kidnapped and murdered the youthful son of another wealthy family and penologists agree that for cold blooded depravity, the murder stands alone in the criminals of Illinois.

According to the newspapers of Chicago millions will be pitted against millions to save Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb from the death penalty. Resources of fifteen million dollars are said to be backing the defense and Clarence Darrow, perhaps the most noted criminal lawyer and orator of America, has been retained as chief counsel to direct the efforts or the activities of a battalion of lesser legal lights in the battle to come. These slayers of fourteen-year-old Robert Franks are young intellectuals, pampered sons of proud fathers who are among the foremost business men of Chicago. Regardless of their wealth, regardless of family influence, regardless of the appeals of maudlin sympathizers with criminals and their crimes, these two young degenerates should be put away by the law for the good of society and a lesson to youthful morons of both sexes whether they come from the ranks of the venal poor or the idle rich.

Mad dogs are put away; why not mad men?

Our Inquisitive Reporter yesterday asked this question of four people taken at random:

"If you subscribe to Confucius' theory that civilization is the sum of frictions whereby every man's personal dignity is preserved and respected, how do you account for the fact that so many red-headed men wear button shoes?"

Agatha Thorne, cloak model: "No, thank you. I already subscribe for four more magazines and I don't care much for heavy reading, anyway."

REAL ESTATE BONDS: THE FASTEST GROWING FORM OF INVESTMENT

SOLD IN 1919	$50,000,000
SOLD IN 1923	$500,000,000

WHY?

1. TO THE EASY UNDERSTOOD MORTGAGE
2. ONE CAN EASILY BORROW ON THEM OR RESELL THEM

How extensively are real estate mortgage bonds held in this country?

The remarkable increase in popularity of real estate bonds is indicated in the increase in their sale from $200,000,000 in 1914 to about $500,000,000 in 1923.

Even in the smaller cities real estate bonds have met with an unusually cordial reception. The reason is that the smaller city and country investor can understand quite readily the nature of the real estate bond, for it is so much like the old-fashioned mortgage on his home or farm.

Further, the careful business man who believes in building a reserve to carry him through the possible lean years of his business, is turning more and more to real estate bonds, because of their non-fluctuating value at a time when he needs to borrow on them or to re-sell them.

This general increasing popularity of real estate bonds accounts for the fact that their sale is estimated to have been approximately one-sixth of the total volume of long term corporate financing done last year.

The Capitol Periscope

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—Representative Howard, democrat of Nebraska, is one of the best known members of this congress. With long hair reaching almost to his shoulders and a deeply lined face, his appearance is that of a statesman of the first half of the last century. He is possessed of a high quavering voice with a peculiar piercing quality which makes it heard above the noise and tumult in the house. When his voice rises, members generally listen for the subject of his remarks is invariably original.

He has made one speech at least once a week throughout the session. This speech is upon his inquiry of the department of justice regarding the wealth of persons now in penitentiaries if demands are made. The name of one man of wealth who is so confined.

"Just the name of one such man, Mr. Speaker," Howard cries in his falsetto voice. "That is not much to ask. Just one name." But so far I have not been favored with a reply.

The house chuckles in mingled amusement and encouragement and Howard moves with dignity to his seat. And always a few days later he finds opportunity to renew his demand for the name of one wealthy man now confined in a penitentiary. Not all the great legislative battles of congress are fought out on the floor with debate and roll calls carried at length in the newspapers. Some of the bitterest and most important are confined in the comparative obscurity of committees. Bills which are much opposed frequently never get out of the committee to where they were referred and if these are much desired by any faction the struggle to get them out to the floor is waged with energy.

Under the old rules a committee could not be discharged from consideration of a bill except by a majority vote of the house. A minority in favor of a bill which they thought could be urged upon the favor of the house if brought out for consideration was doomed to see the bill remain in committee. The beginning of this session, however, the insurgent republicans combined with the democrats to force an amendment to the rules by which a petition signed by 150 members was sufficient to bring a bill out before the house. This method has been used once this session, with the Barker bill abolishing the railroad labor board.

In spite of this liberalized rule all the skirmishes and many of the most decisive battles met by any bill on its way to a final vote occur in committee. The McNary-Haughen farm relief bill, for example, was in the agriculture committee for months while hearings were held and for six weeks longer in executive session while it was fought over word by word. The opposition exhausted every means to block it during those long weeks.

With a normal majority, all the great bills of a session, including such measures as appropriations, taxes, the tariff and immigration, are drafted and practically completed by the committee to which they were referred. This session the frequency with which republican insurgents bolted to make the democratic minority the actual majority has seen many such committees prepared bills made over in the house.

OBSTRUCTIONS TO NAVIGATION
The following was issued through the New Orleans branch of the United States hydrographic office:
Information has been received through the department of state that the dredge Minnesota resumed operations in the port of Salina Cruz on April 30, 1936. The pipe line through which the sand and water are pumped extends from the dredge across the entrance of the harbor to the breakwater and thence over the breakwater to the open ocean. To allow vessels to enter the harbor a break must be made in the pipe line. Masters of vessels should, therefore, give attention to the signals of the dredge, in case they attempt to enter without a pilot, in order to give the dredge crew opportunity to make the necessary opening.

The stranded wreck of a schooner, with two masts and a portion of the hull visible above water, lies 346 yards 146 degrees from the light on the outer end of the police wharf, situated about 600 yards southeastward of Carnegie entrance. Approximate position, latitude 23 degrees, 35 minutes N. longitude 99 degrees, 30 minutes W.

NICARAGUAN VESSEL SEIZED

Mexican Officers Hold Ship On Rebel Charge

GALVESTON, June 6.—Seizure of the Nicaraguan motorship Whipple by the Mexican government officials in Eastern last week was announced Thursday by Harry Newelson of the Southern Banana Corporation, owners of the vessel. Captain H. Nelson of Galveston and his crew of 16 men are under arrest for alleged "mixing with the rebels." They are being held, together with the boat at Vera Cruz.

At the request of Congressman Clay Stone Briggs of this district, the state department at Washington has cabled two demands for the immediate release of the Whipple and her crew.

The Whipple is one of three boats owned and operated by the Southern Banana Corporation in the Galveston-Frontiera fruit trade. No word has been received from the other two—the Worden and Trusdan—since they sailed from here some days ago. All three vessels ply under the Nicaraguan flag.

ICE PLANT ADDS UNITS

Now Operates 7 Wagons, Three Trucks

Few of us have given thought to the many years of development which preceded the present efficient era of ice production, says Mr. Jacobowitz, president of the Commerce Ice and Coal company. Ice was introduced in Europe as early as the eighteenth century and even in our own country shipment of ice was made from New England to foreign countries as late as the early years of the nineteenth century.

Today there are thousands of plants supplying millions of tons of ice to the American consumer and the process of manufacturing has been perfected and standards of quality fixed at such a high point that ice is one of the most commodities entering the home.

The original location of this plant was on Procter, having been built in 1912 and equipped with the old style absorption type machinery which was not suited to making ice with the present water supply, therefore a few miscellaneous parts of the old plant were moved and new machinery of the compression type was installed on Houston street, in 1915. Extensive improvements have been made from time to time up to the recent installation of new steam and ammonia condensers which increases the efficiency and capacity to 30 tons per day.

New concrete drives and platforms that will serve motorists who care to take advantage of the platform service that the company operates 24 hours a day.

The Commerce Ice and Coal company is now operating seven wagons and three trucks and giving employment to 20 people the year around for, in accordance to the laws of compensation, when the ice season ends the coal season commences.

When asked what the prospects for cheaper fuel this winter Jacobowitz stated that, "prices increase at the mines on the winter months, decrease" although, he said, "there will be no serious shortage this winter. That most people are sticking up for the winter supply is evidenced by the steady increase of orders," says Jacobowitz. "It enables us to make prompt deliveries and at prevailing summer prices."

FACTORY HERE A MODEL PLANT

Having been established five years ago in a little two-room shack in the rear of 244 Procter, the G. & H. Mattress company, E. N. George, proprietor, has grown within a space of a few years to a model establishment.

The capacity of from 20 to 40 mattresses a day, handling a large volume of business in Port Arthur, Sabine, Port Neches and Nederland. The plant is now located at Port Worth and Fifteenth streets in a modern building which permits of ideal working conditions for employees.

The G. & H. Mattress company makes a specialty of renovating and this department handles a large volume of work.

"We will take your old lumpy mattress," says Mr. George, "cut for it in a few minutes and deliver it to you in the evening, soft and ready to perform its duty in adding to a good night's rest."

All classes of cushions, for lounges, window seats, day beds, etc., are made, including new mattresses to order.

The company now employs seven men and women, using one truck to make all calls and deliveries promptly.

RUSH GREET'S SPECIAL BILLS

LaFollette Progressives On Senate War Path

WASHINGTON, June 6.—With less than 30 hours to go, a last minute rush for action on special legislation was begun in half a dozen quarters of congress today.

The LaFollette progressives went on the war path in the senate threatening to force reconsideration of the $350,000,000 naval cruiser bill passed last night while they were out of the chamber. Senator LaFollette also indicated he would call up his resolution to provide publicity for campaign expenditures in the coming republican campaign.

"Rider" proposed
The LaFollette campaign expenditures resolution, which was introduced last night, is scheduled to come up tomorrow. Regulation is provided in the cable bill "rider" hatched to the postal salaries increase bill which has been approved by both houses. This limits senate budgetary expenditures to $10,000 and house appropriations to $2,500. It was adopted in place of the Borah "rider" for simple publicity.

There is no chance to turn back the clock and keep congress in session after 7 p. m. tomorrow. No matter who is speaking at the time the gavel will fall and both houses automatically will adjourn sine die.

BUDWINE BOPS CITY TITLE IN FINISH MATCH

Beats Westbrook in Straight Falls at PAAC

USING a body scissors, an arm lock and cradle lock, Owen Budwine decisively defeated Lawrence Westbrook in the arena at Port Arthur Athletic club Friday night for the 100-pound title of Port Arthur, the match extending over a period of 15 minutes and 48 seconds of actual wrestling time.

Two referees officiated during the match, Vic Miller declaring the initial fall in 15 minutes, 14 seconds, when Budwine secured a body scissors hold and clamped on an arm lock. An arm-throwing maneuver and Leo Hummel entered the ring as referee for the final fall, which he declared in 34 seconds after it had begun, Budwine downing his opponent with a cradle lock.

Pandemonium reigned in the club room for a few minutes during the intermission when Harry Coughlin, manager and promoter of the match, jumped into the ring declaring that he had said before the club was going to foster local sports, and there'd be a new referee.

The statement drew considerable argument, during which several fans took occasion to make short addresses, and following which Brumley was selected as referee.

Miller's decision, according to the majority of ringiders who witnessed the match, was unbiased and came at a time when Budwine had Westbrook's shoulders pinned to the mats.

Miller Denies Favoritism
This morning, Miller issued a statement asserting that he did not desire to referee the match at its inception, and that he had only consented to do so after Coughlin had urged him to become the official. Miller is a recognized authority on wrestling in Port Arthur and before officiating in practically all the bouts staged at Elks theater under the direction of Frank Weller Fort.

It was announced last night that he will officiate in the finish match Monday night at Elks theater arena between George Actor and Bill Ryan of New York.

The prelims to last evening's mill-fused a couple of good mill-fused. "Young Stranger" Lewis, defeating "Young Zyrsky" in 14 minutes and 5 seconds with a body scissors and wrist lock, while Young Nick beat Kid Reeves in 9 minutes with similar holds. Gale Hanks, official announcer for Will Fort, officiated.

BEST MAN WON LAST NIGHT'S MATCH

In the writer's opinion, the best man won the match. It is recalled that Westbrook decisively defeated Couch in quick fashion in the same arena not many weeks ago; last night he met defeat in about the same time. True, Budwine had been beaten twice by Couch, but the process of elimination doesn't always hold true to form, and Budwine showed unusual prowess by fans to give an opinion on the match, predicted to men who were Westbrook advocates, that Budwine would win.

Incidentally, this writer had no favorite, thinks as much of one boy personally as he does of the other, wagered no money on the outcome of the match and chose the winner purely on a standpoint of condition and form.

YOUR WANTS—ALL OF THEM—HERE TODAY AND EVERY DAY

VETS MEET IN DALLAS NEXT

Dark Clouds Fail to Halt Line of March

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 7.—Under leadership of the Confederated Veterans of America, a line of march of thousands of veterans is expected to start from Memphis today and march to Dallas, Tex., for the annual convention of the organization.

Despite efforts made to persuade them to ride, many veterans old veterans rode in straggling lines. Men with crutches under their arms protested indignantly at being made subject to ridicule.

With selection of Dallas the reason city for 1925 and the selection of General W. B. Haldeman of Louisville, Ky., as commander-in-chief, the official business was ended. The fight for the 1925 reason was then continued. Norfolk, Va., and Birmingham, Ala., both made bids. The aggressiveness of Dallas swept all before it.

In New York

NEW YORK, June 7.—In an extensive up-town hotel, where many prominent people make their permanent abode, a meeting of bull-boys and other unfortunals held, would take on an international aspect.

There are Russians, English, Spanish, Irish, West Indian, South American, Scotch, Cuban, Austrian, German, and American.

Were they all to bluster forth in their native tongue at a single moment it would sound like a revival of Babel.

One of the men has been around the world three times.

A bull-boy—a native of Spain—recently returned from a honeymoon trip to his native land. He made the tour on tips.

Another bull-boy who has been married 11 years, has two daughters. He is providing them with the best of educations.

Never once do they hint for patronage from the hotel guests. The up-town palms, no familiar at most hostilities is taboo. Their service fee, paid once a week, is large.

Until recently this hotel boasted of the only Irish head waiter on Broadway. But he was forced to resign—probably because he would not bow and scrape before some of the aristocratic guests.

A radio enthusiast was exhibiting great joy yesterday because he tuned in on a station in Davenport, Ia., broadcasting a violin solo.

With the finest of music being sent through space from numerous New York stations, he tuned them out for Davenport.

And in Iowa they probably were straining their ears for a note or two of some New York band.

Newspaper photographers—the camera men—who depict the day's news in pictures—are ever touching elbows with adventure.

Frank Meria, who has scamped all over the country making photos since he was in knee trousers ten years ago, tells me of his most interesting experience.

Charles Evans Hughes, the man with the distinguished whiskers, now secretary of state, was running for the presidency against Woodrow Wilson in the 1916 campaign.

Meria was making a flashlight of Hughes at a meeting in New York. In a premature explosion of the flashlight, powder, Meria was badly burned about the face and his hand was nearly blown off.

Taken to a hospital, he tells me he did not realize the terrific pain he was experiencing, because of this worry:

"Did I blow off Mr. Hughes' whiskers?"

The next day he ceased to worry and began to wonder—what Hughes planned the hospital to determine the extent of the photographer's injuries, and to announce that he had escaped.

Meria was in the hospital a month.

I. AND G. N. LIABLE FOR ALL OLD DEBTS

AUSTIN, June 7.—Under a decision by the supreme court today the International and Great Northern railway company is liable for debts made before reorganization of the company. The decision was handed down in the case of International and Great Northern railway company vs. Texas county judgment of the court of civil appeals and the district court being affirmed.

BISHOP NICHOLS DIES

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The number of deer in California is increasing despite the fact that the combined toll taken by hunters and mountain lions each year is at least 50,000. The state at present has a population of 300,000 to 400,000 deer, according to estimates of the California Fish and Game Commission.

"My, my! I never knew that corn meal smelled up so."

"Please give me ten cents worth of corn meal," said Mrs. Woodchuck, wedding into the little store in the woods.

"Certainly, ma'am," said Nick. "Here's a nice package already put up, and it's just 10 cents."

"Then I'll take it," said Mrs. Woodchuck. "Those children of mine have such big appetites I can't fill them. I'm going to fatten them up and then let them seek their own fortunes in the world. Corn meal, I hear, is very good. I'll read it in the newspaper last night."

So away waddled Mrs. Woodchuck carrying her corn meal under her arm.

"I'll make a lot and it will last awhile," she remarked to herself when she got home, and putting on her kitchen apron she got out the biggest kettle she could find.

Indeed it was so big that the groundhog lady made her apple butter in it in the fall, and she also used it for making bread each week.

And indeed it was whispered around through the Green Woods and the Meadow, that on wash days the neighbors heard Mrs. Woodchuck getting out her big kettle and putting it away again. Do you suppose she could have used it for a wash-tub, too?

Well, anyway, she hauled out her great big kettle and filled it with water and put it on the stove and when it started to boil, she slowly stirred in it the whole 10 cent box of corn meal.

Pretty soon the corn meal began to swell and it went blup, blup, blup, big bubbles out top that burst with a splash as much as to say, "Stand away, everybody, we need more room."

Mrs. Woodchuck began to notice that the mush was clear up to the top of the kettle and running over the edge.

"My, my, I'll have to get another kettle!" she cried. "I'll don't I'll have corn-meal mush all over my clean store."

So she laded out about half the kettleful into another pan and then she had two kettles on the stove.

Blup, blup, blup! they went, the two kettles of mush did, and the first thing she knew the mush was up to the top of both of them, and starting to boil over like everything.

"Oh, Wally, run and borrow Mrs. Bunny's kettle. Hurry!" cried Mrs. Woodchuck, "or my store will be ruined."

So away went Wally and came back with Mrs. Bunny's kettle.

Mrs. Woodchuck laded out the mush until Mrs. Bunny's kettle was full, too. And then there were three kettles on the stove boiling and going blup, blup, blup, all over everything.

"My, my! I never knew that corn meal swelled up so," cried Mrs. Woodchuck. "Why, I do believe it's still rising. I'll have to get another kettle. Wobblly, run and get Mrs. Musk-rat's kettle at once."

Wobblly did. But still it was not enough. And before the afternoon was over, Mrs. Woodchuck had every kettle in the Green Woods and the Meadow full of mush. And not only the stove but the tables and sink and chairs were covered.

And there were pans to set it out in to cool. They had to be borrowed, too.

Such a time! And such a lot of mush! Mrs. Woodchuck couldn't turn her children out into the world at all after that. She had to keep them at home all summer to eat up the mush.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

KING CANUTE AND KING OLAF

Some of the Northern people of the island, and to this day we sometimes find families there with such names as Hanson, Jansen and Thorkelson.

England was even more popular with the Northerners. It was larger and easier to reach.

England at that time was in control of the Anglo-Saxons. They had been in England 500 or 400 years when the Northerners began to come.

The English called the invaders "Danes," because they came mainly from Denmark. For two centuries there were battles to decide who should rule the island. The English fought stubbornly, but the Danes gained more and more land. London was the last place to hold out against the fighters from the north.

The first Northerner to become ruler of England was named Canute.

Canute is sometimes called "the great," because he got power over so much land. He had Denmark before he came to England. He also laid claim to the throne of Norway.

The king of Norway at that time was Olaf, "the Stout." Canute sent some messengers to him.

"You must either give up your throne," said the messengers, "or else admit that Canute is your lord and master."

Olaf became angry.

"There is no end to the greed of this man Canute," he cried. "Denmark and England aren't enough for him. He wants Norway, too! Does he want to rule all the northern lands, or to eat alone all the cabbage in England? He is more likely to do that than to get me to be his under-man."

The messengers gave this message to Canute. He replied:

"King Olaf is mistaken if he thinks I want to eat all the cabbage in England. He will soon see that I have something besides cabbage under my ribs."

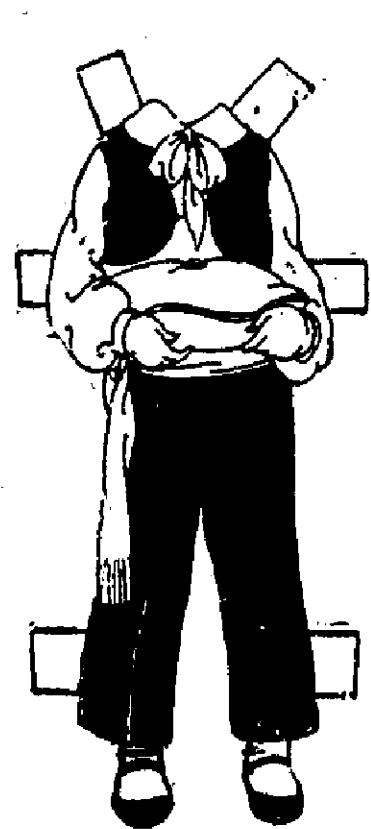

Canute made good his threat. He ran power over Norway and Olaf lost the throne.

Billy Is a Ring Bearer

ring bearer at his cousin's wedding.

"Why, I think you look perfectly fine, Billy," declared his cousin. "I don't see why boys shouldn't wear fancy clothes as well as girls. You know long ago, in George Washington's time, the men used to look exactly like the women. They wore silk trousers and bright colored hose and fine embroidered waist-coats."

"Well, I'm glad I didn't live then," declared Billy. "But when no one was looking, he sneaked back twice to look at himself in the long mirror in the hall."

Next week there'll be a lot of fancy dresses for Betty to wear. (Copyright, 1924, Associated Editors, Inc.)

RAILROAD COMMISSION HAS HEAVY DOCKET

AUSTIN, June 7.—A heavy hearing docket for next week was announced today by the railroad commission. Pretty Bridge Given by Mrs. Fitz-Gerald

A charming bridge of the past week was given when Mrs. C. M. Fitz-Gerald entertained the members of the Hult Bridge Club at her home, 2237 Sixth street, three tables of players enjoying the delightful affair.

A rainbow theme was selected by the hostess to feature the pleasing bridge party, the color scheme being reflected in the pretty profusion of roses about the room and in the bridge table accessories.

In the games Mrs. S. C. Dunlop was awarded the prize for high score and Mrs. Allen Hulse secured the low score favor. A dainty refreshment course, featuring the rainbow theme, was served after the games.

The personnel of players for the afternoon included Mrs. S. C. Dunlop, Mrs. Allen Hulse, Mrs. C. M. Fitz-Gerald, Mrs. J. C. Brennan, Mrs. M. P. Folke, Mrs. Gilbert Rott, Mrs. Jimmie Minter, Mrs. Kyle Dowdy, Mrs. Frances Dunlop, Mrs. A. L. Carter, Mrs. J. P. Nelson and Mrs. J. M. Foster.

CHOIR ENJOYS SWIM AT BEACH.
Members of the choir of the First M. E. Church South enjoyed a most delightful swim at McFadden's beach Thursday evening. After a refreshing dip in the waters of the Gulf, the party enjoyed a wicker roast on the beach.

Those participating in the pleasing outing were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Singletary, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Merchant, Mr. and Mrs. D. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. F. Rhineland, Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Durke, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Snuckey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Perry, Mrs. Alma Majors and Little Daughter, Genevieve, Mrs. C. W. Van Cortlandt, Mrs. J. D. Carter, Mrs. John Crews, Miss Blattie Bonner, G. W. Arnold, M. Stewart, Frank Ebaugh and La G. Swanson.

GUEST DAY AND "MITE BOX" OPENING.
The Home Missionary Society of the First Methodist Episcopal church will observe "Guest Day" and the "Mite Box" opening day Thursday afternoon at the church, 2111 West and Lake Shore drive, at 2:30 o'clock.

Hotesses on this occasion will include Mrs. C. W. Rodgers, Mrs. C. V. Palmer, Mrs. J. A. Paschal and Mrs. W. H. Achey.

The afternoon's devotionals will be conducted by Mrs. P. H. Lagrone and the lesson study will be in charge of Mrs. Leonard Power. Musical numbers will be rendered during the afternoon hours for the entertainment of the guests.

MRS. M. P. FOLKE HAS GUESTS.
Mrs. M. P. Folke of 526 Thomas boulevard has as her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Walter McKee and Little son, Walter, Jr., of Fort Worth; and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Britten and Mrs. F. J. Morris of Dallas. The party motored over as far as Houston but left their automobile in Houston on account of the bad roads between Houston and Beaumont.

WHEELERS CLUB ENTERTAINED.
Mrs. O. S. Moody charmingly entertained the members of the Wheelers Club at bridge Thursday afternoon at her home, 2237 Fifth street.

Two tables of players enjoyed the game. Mrs. Ivy Carter secured the prize for high score and consolation fell to Mrs. Robert Druggan. A tasty ice course was served after the games.

Players for the afternoon included Mrs. Ivy Carter, Mrs. Robert Druggan, Mrs. N. J. Reese, Mrs. H. E. Lanby, Mrs. A. M. Korn, Mrs. E. E. Follette, Mrs. N. F. Pray and Mrs. O. Lantz.

On Thursday afternoon, June 10, Mrs. N. F. Pray will entertain the club with an outing at Fort Neches Park.

ST. GEORGE'S GUILD TO MEET.
St. George's Episcopal Guild will meet in final session Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. E. Jennie, 1900 Procter street.

Mrs. F. V. Low, president of the Guild, urged all members to be present at this meeting, and all committees are requested to make reports on their work.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE LEAVE ON VACATION.
Mr. and Mrs. George George and little son, George, Jr., of 1230 Fifth street left last night for Carlisle, Ind., to visit Mr. George's brother, William George. Before returning to Port Arthur they will visit his sister, Mrs. R. Price in Sweetwater, Tenn. They expect to be gone three weeks.

Mrs. Hoe's Pupils Give Recital Here.
Charlotte Gregg Hoe will present her pupils in recital at the Department Club Monday evening, June 9, at 8:15 o'clock.

Lovely Dinner And Bridge By Jewish Council

An affair of lovely appointments was the dinner and bridge Wednesday evening at the Department Club when the Council of Jewish Women entertained their husbands at 6 o'clock dinner with bridge as diversion during the evening hours.

The affair was planned as a dinner dance but on account of the inclement weather the Council home just opposite the club house and out of respect for the deceased, George T. Craig, the dancing was dispensed with and bridge gave after-dinner diversion.

The large assembly room was lovely with a profusion of gorgeous sweet peas, hydrangeas, pot plants, and other beautiful summer flowers, which suggested by their delicate tints the color scheme of white and yellow, which was displayed in the table appointments and accessories.

The delectable five course dinner was served on attractively decorated trays centered with a cluster of the chosen blossoms. Seventy-five guests enjoyed the gracious affair, and in the games, Mrs. Fred Greenberg received the ladies' prize for high score and the gentlemen's favor was presented to Albert Plotman.

The entertainment was a benefit party for the Council of Jewish Women and a neat sum was realized for the Council treasury.

You

DO YOU HOPE THE DOOR WILL OPEN FOR YOUR CHILDREN?

Do you dream of success for your sons and daughters, hoping that Opportunity will respond to their efforts? Well, in the parlance of the day, it is up to you!

How? By your concern in the normal, wholesome growth of the institutions and industries of your community. You pay taxes liberally that there be institutions of learning here for the education of the children. But—do you follow that up by trading at home, so that by the time they are ready to earn there will be worth-while industries of solid financial growth ready with opportunities for them?

Just as surely as a tiny, tiny leak in the main wastes thousands of gallons of water, so the steady taking out of money—in salaries and not putting it back in the local main of trade will waste and destroy the substance of a community. Think it over.

'Doug' Jr. Stars in Stephen Steps Out, Colleen Moore Plays Tomboy in 'Flaming Youth'

Douglas Fairbank Jr. is Chip Off Old Block in Debut as Star

A real, live-wire, honest, up-to-date American schoolboy hobnobbing with the Sultan of Turkey, defeating Turkish plotters against the throne and finally winning the praise of the Sultan himself will be shown in "Stephen Steps Out," a new Paramount picture starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., displayed at the Peoples theatre now.

Young Fairbanks makes his screen debut in this absorbing photograph. Douglas, as Stephen Harlow, Jr., is sent to Turkey by his wealthy father and instead of studying Turkish history as decreed, succeeds in making history on his own account.

Elaborate sets showing hotel jobs in Constantinople, Turkish prisons, the palace of the Sultan and many quaint corners of the famous Near East city form suitable backgrounds for the picture. The plot is in keeping with the Turkish settings.

Stephen Harlow is shown in the opening scenes at the school founded by his wealthy father, a role played by Theodore Roberts, who heads the supporting cast. Having "hunkered" in examination in Turkish history, his angry parent sends him to Turkey to study history first hand.

In Turkey, Stephen's private tutor accidentally becomes involved in the plotting of rebels, who plan to overthrow the Turkish government. Both boy and tutor are taken prisoners. Stephen accidentally being placed in a cell next to the son of the Sultan.

The Sultan's heir had been captured by the plotters and held for ransom. Stephen escapes, warns the Sultan and receives his unqualified praise.

It is agreed that the Turkish government will bestow upon Dr. Gilman, an old professor at Stephen's school, "The Grand Cross of the Crescent."

Young Harlow and his father arrive at the school just as Turkish Envoys are about to decorate Dr. Gilman with the famous cross. Harlow, Sr., learning his son's part in the affair, is so pleased that he forgives the boy and the two are reconciled.

Colleen Moore is Screen's Best Tomboy

Rodolph Valentino can claim the title. "The screen's greatest lover."

Norma Talmadge is accorded the distinction of being the greatest of all emotional actresses.

To William S. Hart goes the title. "The screen's greatest portrayer of western roles."

But to Colleen Moore must go the title—"The screen's one and only tomboy."

Miss Moore stands so far ahead of her competitors in this distinction that there is really no competition at all.

She has been "tomboy" in five years ago. She has been a "tomboy" representative of almost every nationality.

She was "tomboy" Irish in "Come on Over," and an Indian "tomboy" in "The Grand Cross of the Crescent."

A typical society "tomboy" in "Flaming Youth," and in "Painted People," playing at the Peoples theatre this week, she is again portraying an American "tomboy" but one completely different from her "Flaming Youth" characterization.

In this picture she is seen in the leading role, that of a boyish girl of the poorer section of a typical American town, the ringleader of all the devilry of the neighborhood and the best baseball player in the district.

Member When the Gang Called You Sissy?

You can give a boy a whipping or a word warning and he won't hold it against you, but if you dress him up in effeminate clothes, he'll never forgive you. That's about the greatest punishment you can inflict upon him.

Can you blame Bennie Finkel, then, for flinching at the prospect of going amongst the fellows, all dressed up like little Lord Fauntleroy? Ben Finkel wanted his Bennie to be the envy of the neighborhood so he bought him a black velvet suit and a blouse with a face collar. There wasn't much left of the suit when the fellows got through with Bennie. They wouldn't have any sissy in their gang.

Martin Broder gives a very realistic portrayal of Bennie in "Grit," the Paramount picture which comes to the Strand theatre Tuesday, June 10.

Scott Fitzgerald wrote the story especially for Glenn Hunter and the Film Guild produced it. It is a crook story with a new twist; the tale of an East Side boy's struggle to break away from the gang of crooks who brought him up.

The supporting cast includes Clara Bow, Osgood Perkins, Townsend Martin, Dore Davidson, Helenka Adamowska, Roland Young and Joseph Depew.

Tastes in Common—Then Marriage Happy

Tastes in common are an essential of happy married life. Is the opinion of James Kirkwood.

Mr. Kirkwood's observations on marriage were prompted by the interviewer's questions after seeing the actor's portrayal of Michael France, the "discontented husband" in the new drama, "Discontented Husbands."

While, however, similar tastes are an essential of congenial marriage, it is also Mr. Kirkwood's opinion that there must be a readiness to make certain allowances for such likes and dislikes as one does not share with the other.

"In other words," he says, "marriage must be a fifty-fifty proposition. I do believe that the marriage that lasts is based not only on love, but on congeniality of likes. In fact, the one grows out of the other, for I think that real love is really founded on the possibility of real congeniality."

friendship, in the big things as well as in the little. Anything else doesn't last very long.

"However, it is also true that two people, no matter how congenial, cannot like everything exactly the same way. While a man and woman may both love the outdoors, may both like housekeeping on a small or on a lavish scale, may both care for or loathe society, which is sufficient to establish a very fine companionship, it is also possible that one of these two people may be very fond of music, or theater, or poetry, while the other may not."

"This is where the real test of marriage comes in. One must be ready to recognize the other's desire for something that does not appeal to him—must be ready, not to discourage it, but to encourage it—to see that in this one respect, each must go his own way as an individual. It is the idea that one loves one's

DOUG M'LEAN IN 'GOING UP'

Upper Ether Comedy Star Outdoes Himself

"Going Up." Douglas MacLean's latest screen production, flew up to the Pearce theatre yesterday and flew away with about all the laughter the audience could reasonably be expected to spare in one evening. Mr. MacLean is the star of the high altitude comedy and the aviation clothes he wears fit him without a wrinkle.

The plot of the story concerns a young man who has to fly an airplane and can't. That is about all there is to it and that is sufficient as it affords Mr. MacLean unlimited opportunities of being continually forced from one amusing uncomfortable situation into another both more amusing and more uncomfortable.

Like every other screen star, Mr. MacLean appears to the best advantage when his story material is adequate and "Going Up" is the best vehicle of his career, not excepting "The Hottentot" and "Twenty-Three and a Half Hours' Leave."

The play is a two-act Broadway success. Originally presented as "The Aviator," by James H. Montgomery, it scored heavily on the New York stage. Later, it was set to music by Otto F. Harbach and Louis A. Hirsch and presented by Cotton A. Harris as "Going Up." The musical version played for more than two years in New York and throughout the country and a year and a half in London.

Mr. MacLean as Robert Street, a young man with a distinct aversion to all things aeronautic, proves himself a skillful farceur. His capable support includes Marjorie Daw, Hallam Cooley, Edna Murphy, Lucille Mack, John Steadman, Arthur Stuart Hull, Francis McDonald and others. The film was directed by Lloyd Ingraham and is presented by Associated Exhibitors, who first introduced Harold Lloyd in a feature comedy. Arthur S. Kane surely knows how to pick his comedians.

CAMEO THEATER OPENS JUNE 21

'Miami,' With Betty Compson, Is Opener

The "Cameo" theater, Port Arthur's newest theater, which will be one of the most up to date and finest in the southwest, will open about June 21, the opening picture to be "Miami," starring Betty Compson.

The Cameo theater will be located in the building formerly occupied by Deuter's store and Kahn Shoe store. Among other large pictures scheduled for the Cameo are J. Stuart Blackton's "Between Friends," "Missing Daughters," Constance Talmadge in individuality that is the basis of so many unhappy marriages. I think. Why, just because one has promised to love, honor, and try to obey the other, should either party give up a thoroughly harmless fondness for something that doesn't hurt the other at all to indulge? Yet that is where most married people fall down.

"Similarity of taste there must be—but individuality there must be also, if the union is to be a happy one."

"Discontented Husbands" will be seen at the Pearce theatre on Tuesday.

'Call of the Woods' Starts At Garden Airdome Monday

The Ferguson Brothers will present for the first three days of the week commencing tonight a play which they presented with great success during their engagement at the Strand theatre, viz., "The Call of the Woods." This play is a strong melodramatic comedy of life in the Canadian northwest and is replete with comedy situations, thrilling climaxes and has a wonderful love story. The play will only run three days on account of the big royalty demanded on the Holbrook Blinn play "The Bad Man" which the company will play for the remaining four days of the week. There will be another amateur night Tuesday night, this night laid aside for all white contestants. Friday night will be reserved for all colored talent to compete, colored singers and dancers, monologists, quinettes, instrumentalists, any stunts and prizes will be awarded the successful ones.

'The Eleventh Hour' Is A Thriller by Carter

"The Eleventh Hour," the Lincoln J. Carter stage "thriller" produced on the screen by William Fox, sent thousands of mental shocks vibrating through the Liberty theatre yesterday. The picture pulsates with life. But this was to be expected in a drama from Carter. The "Father of Melodrama" as he is called, knows how to handle things along and has speeded up the action in this story to the top notch.

The adventures of a beautiful young heiress and an iron-nerved federal officer who prevents a European prince from learning the secret of a new explosive owned by Uncle Sam, is the subject that is treated so entertainingly in "The Eleventh Hour."

The escape of the hero and heroine from the submarine through the torpedo tubes and the terrific fight between the federal officer and the conspirators, in which the life of the young girl is the issue, are two of the big moments of the picture.

DAUGHERTY SEEKS TO REGAIN OHIO CONTROL
CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 7.—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, will make a desperate fight to recapture control of the republican Ohio organization.

This was seen today in reports which said the former attorney general will send his forces with Senator Frank Willis in an effort to force through the selection of Louis Brush of Salem, Ohio, part owner of the Marion Star, formerly the late President Harding's newspaper, as national committeeman, succeeding R. K. Hyatt, Cincinnati, who is expected to retire.

"Dangerous Maid," and Harold Lloyd's "Girl Shy."
These larger pictures will have split week bookings, changing each Sunday and Wednesday, with the exception of Harold Lloyd's picture, which will run one week.

Mary Anderson, who appears in the leading feminine role, opposite Matty Mattison in "Shell Shocked Sammy," which plays the Liberty theatre next week, is the same Mary Anderson, so well known for her Vitaphone successes, and her other big feature pictures, "Bubbles" and "Sunshine."

"Shell Shocked Sammy" is not a war play as the title might indicate, although the leading character was shell shocked in the great war and thus secured his nickname.

PLAN REDUCES ALL CONGESTION

Confusion of Drivers Avoided at Intersections

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
NEA Service Writer

DIRECT automobile traffic away from street car lines.

Provide crossing streets.

Eliminate parking in congested areas.

Provide loading platforms for street car traffic.

Install rotary traffic at busy corners.

Cut off corner curbs at a wider radius.

These are the salient recommendations for the relief of traffic congestion and consequent reduction of accident made by William J. Cox, traffic engineer of the National Bureau of Chassis and Motor Underwriters.

They are made after a close study of traffic conditions and accident causes in several cities.

According to Cox, congestion is the greatest physical or non-physical cause of automobile accidents. Not that they occur at busy intersections any more than elsewhere.

"The strain of driving through heavy traffic," he believes, "results in a fatigue which manifests itself in the form of carelessness, recklessness and accidents on the outskirts of the congested area, where traffic control is relaxed."

But it may be noted, he adds, that the bulk of traffic accidents occur between 4 and 8 p. m.

Practically all congested areas, he points out, have cost Chicago alone about $60,000,000 daily in delaying traffic.

Aide from delays due to street cars, however, the greatest slowing up of traffic, at busy intersections, comes from busy intersections.

If two streets of equal width, carrying an equal amount of traffic, intersect, one can use the crossing only half the time.

To avoid this delay and at the same time provide safer crossing, Cox suggests two remedies:

1.—Provide circles in the center of crossroads where there is room, especially at intersections of more than two streets. Traffic would have to move around these circles, thus blending into one another from all streets and all moving the same way. Thus all cars could be kept moving and confusion would be reduced to a minimum.

2.—Cut off each corner in a radius equal to the width of the narrower sidewalk, so that auto-trying to make a right turn could do so easily by hugging the curb and not interfere with other traffic.

"In any case," Cox concludes, "make the safe path the easiest path to follow and eliminate confusion by marking out on the pavement with paint or preferably with a combination of paint and bumpers the paths to be followed by both pedestrians and vehicles. If this principle is adhered to in any given case, improvement will surely result."

GEAR LUBRICATION

As the gears are mounted in the axle housing, they are lubricated by means of the lubricant which is carried in the housing. The filler opening is usually so placed as to provide the correct level of the lubricant automatically when replenishing the supply. The bevel ring gear in passing through the lubricant dislodges it to the various bearings and gear teeth. Owing to the difficulty in gaining access to the axle the lubricant can be introduced by means of a squirt gun.

For lubricant, semi-fluid oil is generally recommended. This should be about the consistency of 600-W steam engine oil. As a rule, every 5,000 miles the old lubricant should be removed and the housing thoroughly flushed to remove all dirt and the supply should be replenished with fresh oil.—Automobile Digest.

ENGLAND ALARMED AS SKILLED WORKERS GO

LONDON, June 1.—Public opinion here is alarmed at the number of skilled men emigrating to America and other countries.

According to information given in the house of commons in Sidney Webb, president of the Board of Trade, 20,500 skilled workers in the building, metal and engineering trades left England for America in the first nine months of last year. Of this number 12,807 took up permanent residence in the United States, according to Webb.

USE FOR EMPTY CANS

The mechanic or car owner who allows a certain space for every tool and tries to keep every tool in its place, sometimes finds it quite a problem to store the numerous small parts, bolts, nuts, washers, etc., so that they may be quickly found when needed. Frequently they are thrown together in a box for future use. However, when the time for use comes, the box generally must be dumped and the entire pile scratched over before the desired part can be found.

Most every mechanic or car owner, who works around the car, uses some form of grit soap to clean the hands. This soap usually comes in tin cans, about 3 or 4 inches in diameter, which answer admirably for the storing of small parts. These cans may be arranged in an orderly manner on a shelf along the garage wall or they may be fastened on a board, forming a neat tray which may be carried right to the job.—Automobile Digest.

SPARK PLUG REMOVERS

When a spark plug becomes frozen in a cylinder head, gentle persuasion with a wrench will not always suffice, though a sharp blow on the wrench will often start the plug turning. A very effective tool for this purpose is made from a spark plug socket wrench of the usual type, being drilled for the insertion of a pipe, each side. A piece of pipe, which will slip over the wrench, is slotted on opposite sides to pass over the pins. These slots should be cut on an angle of about twenty degrees and should be about one inch long. A plug on the opposite end of the pipe serves to receive the hammer blow while a handle is used to hold the tool in position. The pipe is set on the wrench which the slots engaging the pins. A sharp blow with a hammer drives the pipe downward while the angularity of the slots tends to turn the wrench. Usually one blow is sufficient.—Automobile Digest.

FRICTION AND HEAT

A clutch that instantly grabs hold whenever it is thrown in plays "hot" with the whole works. Therefore, we all know that an efficient clutch must be so constructed that it takes hold gradually, but this requisite involves great frictional hardships both to the metal surfaces and friction discs.

Friction and heat go hand in hand, an efficient clutch of every class of machinery, so for goodness sake, keep your foot of the clutch pedal unless it is necessary to use it for a definite purpose. Riding the clutch, or in other words, using the clutch pedal as you would a "brass rail" exerts just enough pressure to slightly release the spring tension and cause a gradual but constant slippage, which in turn generates heat and eventually burns the plate and clares the friction material. If the abuse continues the plate finally tears loose from the hub and wears so thin it becomes useless.—Automobile Digest.

FLAT RATE ADVANTAGE

BUILD BUICK BEFORE PUBLIC

Large Truck To Be Used As Assembling Plant

Approximately 33 of the leading cities of the United States are to witness one of the most novel demonstrations ever conducted by an automobile factory, through the enterprise of the Buick Motor company, Flint, Mich.

A General Motors truck especially-built body for the job in hand and fitted at each side with hinged platforms which, when let down, furnishes an adequate stage for the proceedings, arrived with three Buick workmen and a lecturer at Saginaw, Michigan, the initial stop of a coast-to-coast tour of approximately 9,000 miles, recently.

A Buick car is to be built openly before the public on the platform fitted to the truck entirely from units obtained from the stock of the local Buick branch or distributing house. The idea is not only to exploit the simplicity and sturdiness of the Buick chassis, but also the interchangeability of parts that can be obtained from Buick representatives in all parts of the United States.

The caravan proceeds from Saginaw to Battle Creek, Michigan, where a similar demonstration will be staged, thence to Detroit, from which city it will proceed eastward to the Atlantic coast. It will then turn to the south, visiting the states intervening between New England and the Gulf of Mexico. On the return trip it will proceed as far north as Minneapolis and then to the Pacific coast.

MOTOR VEHICLES IN U. S.

There were in operation in the entire world on January 1, 1924, approximately 15,763,251 passenger cars, 2,243,500 motor trucks, and 1,675,000 motorcycles, upon the basis of a compilation made by the Automotive Division of the Department of Commerce.

In the United States the approximate total was: passenger cars, 13,484,320; trucks, 1,706,330; motorcycles, 1,715,903.—Automobile Digest.

Fordson Tractors Are Equipped to Last

All over the country, from farmers who produce the nation's food-stuffs, from the builders who undertake great construction jobs and from road makers who smooth the way for transportation, there is an increasing demand for tractor power. This is fully demonstrated to anyone making a little journey through the Fordson tractor plant of the Ford Motor company at River Rouge, Mich., near Detroit, where these power plants are being produced at the rate of about 400 every eight-hour working day. That's close to one a minute.

Not only are farmers more keenly realizing the advantages and economies of power farming, but the adaptability of the Fordson to belt and gear driven work is drawing a surprisingly increasing number of them into industrial and commercial activities.

Sturdy, dependable, easy of operation and adaptable to more than 100 power uses all through the stages of farming and through commercial power requirements, the Fordson tractor is enjoying the greatest popularity in its history.

With the manufacture of the various component parts of the Fordson brought up to the highest possible development under the most exacting standards, the assembly of the tractor comes with automatic precision.

GEAR REMOVER

On some motors or generators, the small gear on the armature shaft is held so close to the housing that it is impossible to use a gear puller of the usual type. In such cases, it is common to use a chisel, a method which is not to be recommended, as the pressure is concentrated only at one point on the housing and thereby presents the danger of cracking. Again, a one-sided pressure is exerted on the gear, which may cause it to tilt or wedge on the shaft, and in extreme cases, may result in a bent shaft. A gear remover which overcomes all these defects and can be easily made, is composed of two slotted metal wedges which are placed behind the gear and tapped towards each other. The gear will then be quickly and safely loosened.—Automobile Digest.

CHRYSLER MEN ARE PROMOTED

Engineering Force Gets Two Vice Presidents

DETROIT, June 1.—Announcement is made by Walter P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the Maxwell-Chrysler-Chalmers board of directors, that J. F. Fields has been elected vice president in charge of the corporation's sales, and that Fred M. Zeder has been elected vice president in charge of engineering. Fields has been general sales manager and Zeder chief engineer.

"The remarkable abilities shown by Zeder and Fields since they assumed charge of the engineering and sales departments of the entire corporation five months ago is responsible for this promotion," says Chrysler.

To the industry, generally, the rapid promotion of the two men will be important news, though it has been freely predicted by Maxwell-Chrysler executives for some time, owing to the outstanding improvements, particularly in the Maxwell division, in sales, merchandising and engineering, while the two have sponsored and carried out.

Fields joined Maxwell 18 months ago as a sales director. He was chosen to take charge of the corporation's combined sales departments following the sudden death of Arthur E. Barker in January. For 18 years, beginning with the old Thomas-Detroit company, he has been intimately associated with the problems of motor car distribution—as dealer, territorial manager and sales manager. It is believed that he knows more automobile dealers and distributors than any other man in the industry.

Deutser

Editorial

36 years ago the founder of this business, Mr. Julius Deutser, opened a store in Port Arthur—it was a one man institution—a grocery store in the two hundred block on Procter street—The Boss literally took down the shutters and "TURNED OFF THE GAS." But he built along the right lines, the lines of hard work, truthfulness and honor—with the determination to give service to his customers—and the utmost in value with every sale. No wonder, the business has grown into a metropolitan institution employing upwards of 75 sales people—serving the employees within a radius of 100 miles of Port Arthur with the choicest merchandise brought from every quarter of the globe—a store that in the opinion of many is one of Port Arthur's greatest assets.

These are the fabrics that fashion the smart modes of summer. The delightful weaves, new patterns and colors are truly inspirational to the planning of several pretty summer frocks, aided nobly by these specially low prices.
